

Call for 2012 AOM TIM Junior Faculty Consortium

The Technology and Innovation Management Division of the Academy of Management is pleased to invite applications for the 2012 TIM Junior Faculty Consortium to be held at the Academy of Management meeting in Boston (Massachusetts) on Friday, August 3rd and Saturday, August 4th, 2012.

If you hold an assistant professor rank (or its equivalent) and teach or research in the TIM domain, this professional development workshop is for you. The workshop will make available the knowledge that you need to prosper in both the local and global academic environment. The workshop focuses on strategies for impact as a scholar and teacher, as well as on building a career in diverse professional settings.

This year's consortium will allow participants to learn how to publish in top journals, meet the editors of prestigious journals in the field, and receive feedback on their working papers from their peers and senior faculty. The consortium will feature outstanding senior faculty members with a proven record of research and teaching. The consortium will provide participants with the opportunity for reflection and renewal, for networking with friends and colleagues, and for meeting new peers and senior colleagues with shared interests. Applicants must have at least one full year of experience as an assistant professor in a post-Ph.D. academic institution and no more than three years experience by August 2012.

To apply, please email your vita to Keld Laursen at kl.ino@cbs.dk. When you apply, please indicate the month and year you started your first assistant professor position. We will take applications on a rolling basis until May 15, 2012. We encourage you to apply early and please note that we require potential applicants to attend the entire consortium.

Accepted applicants will be required to submit a working paper for the Paper Feedback Session by June 30, 2012.

If you have questions concerning these requirements, please contact one of the co-chairs below.
